MOVEMENTS NEAR COLUMBUS.—We believe it reliable, that a troop of Lincoln's cavalry visited the town of Mayfield, in Grimes county, there had accompanied them, many of the soldiers of the 1st Tennessee Infantry. These troops, immediately upon their arrival at Mayfield, commenced the work of arming private citizens. One of Mr. Baker's sons, who was a private in the 1st Tennessee, was among those arrested. REMARKS UNDER A CLOUD.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

This gentleman is taking his turn of unpopularity. He may have committed grave errors, but it is possible that he is deficient in some of the qualities of a "great captain." We only know him as a man of thorough military education, and as a man of high character.

Suppose he had remained there to preserve the health of his troops, and left them on the march to be cut off by a hostile force, as he is supposed to have done. He would have been a great captain, and his name would have been a great name.

It is not wonderful to see the complaints of the soldiers of the 1st Tennessee, and the complaints of the soldiers of the 1st Tennessee, and the complaints of the soldiers of the 1st Tennessee.
